Keyboard macro that creates hotkeys to launch popular chess engines and edit a score file. Keymacro is a very useful command line tool for automating and simplifying data entry tasks when it comes to large amounts of data, or when the data is either fixed or updated regularly. Keymacro allows you to set a keyboard shortcut for each action, either using the 'hotkey' or 'clipboard' command, and supports customizable hotkeys. Keymacro will automatically execute one or more command line programs with one or more command line arguments, and often in a certain order. You can either execute one or multiple programs, or save a command into a variable. This allows you to execute the same script multiple times without typing it out each time. For example, you can execute a program for a large number of accounts, and paste the input into another program, and it automatically updates all of them. The hotkeys must be set before the program runs, and can be either associated with the last, the current or next clip. The hotkeys can also be saved into a hotkey file, and you can set hotkeys for each file separately, so if you set one hotkey for viewing your balance sheet, you don't have to re-set it for every other spreadsheet you might open.

Implementing Keymacro: You can set a hotkey to be associated with a specific macro, by first setting up the macro as a hotkey, and then associating it with a specific key: This feature allows you to set a command to be executed and then the hotkey for that command. To set the hotkey: 1. Go to Options. 2. From the box on the bottom left, select 'Macro Editor.' 3. Click on the 'Macro name' column. 4. You should now have a list of macros. 5. Click on the name of the macro you want to associate the hotkey with. 6. From the box on the bottom left, select 'Hotkey Editor'. 7. Set the hotkey that you want to associate with the macro. 8. The hotkey should now be associated with the macro. 9. Save the hotkey file. 10. Go to the Script Editor. 11. Select the name of the macro you want to run, and select the hotkey file from the drop down menu. 12. Select 'Generate'. 13. The program should now generate 77a5ca646e
